Have you read the man's book? To say Mr. Gates ambition is Hitlerian is faint praise. If you think monopoly is a crime, take steps that oppose the consolidation of power. Payment of fines in Microsoft products is ridiculous. Listen to the people who have something at stake besides the status quo. It seems to me the goal of any action should be to lay the groundwork for individuals to defend themselves against the monster, not to close the books on a bit of sticky business. How can you even consider this act of non-contrition that Microsoft proposes? The whole world is watching. Sincerely
